Hear me roar! - A century of change International Women's Day

International Woman's day is just around the corner, it's a time to remember the plight of woman and their struggle for equality, peace and development.

What began in the socialist movement of the early 1900's has snow-balled into fairer treatment and voting rights for woman across the world. Women have been picketing and marching for their rights to vote and for fairer working conditions since 1908; where in New York 15,000 women took to the streets.

In recent decades, Women's access to education and proper health care has increased, their participation in the paid labour force has grown, and legislation that promises equal opportunities for women and respect for their human rights has been adopted across the world. The world now has a growing number of women participating in society as policy-makers, ensuring further advancement towards fairness.

The road to equality is long and there is further to go; For instance, nowhere in the world can women claim to have all the same rights and opportunities as men. On average, women receive between 30 and 40 per cent less pay than men earn for the same work. Women are victims of violence, with rape and domestic violence listed as significant causes of disability and death among women.

So March 8th is a time to remember, a time to progress and a chance to find your voice. Sing it loud and proud. Join in the festivities and show you care, about women everywhere.
